Cast Is Named For May 7-9 Period Comedy

The cast has been named for "Life With Father", a period comedy by Lindsay and Crouse, according to Dr. Elaine Novak, associate professor of speech, and director of the play.

The popular comedy, which ran almost eight years on Broadway, will be presented for Parents' Weekend, May 7, 8, and 9.

The three younger sons in the cast will be played by children of three Marshall professors. Dennis Hoak, 15-year-old son of Dr. Eugene Q. Hoak, chairman of the Speech Department, has the part of John. Charles Buell, 13-year-old son of Dr. Stephen Buel, professor of speech, is Whitney, and Garth Brown, six-year-old son of Dr. Mahlon Brown, associate professor of social studies is Harlan.

NASA Movies Due Showing

The Veterans' Club announced that films on the "Space Project" have arrived from NASA headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The films will be shown at 1 p.m. today in Science Hall Auditorium. The titles of the films are: "America in Space," "Freedom Seven," "Friendship 7," "Project Apollo—Manned Flight to the Moon."

"America in Space" shows the growth of the United States' space efforts from its beginning through the early phases of the program to land an American on the moon.

"Freedom Seven" follows Astronaut Shepard through the last few days before his suborbital launch and shows his recovery and reception aboard the carrier, Lake Champlain.

"Friendship 7" shows a close look at the several international tracking stations around the world.

"Project Apollo—Manned Flight to the Moon" shows the steps that will be taken by NASA to place men on the moon and get them back safely.

It also shows the complete sequence of events for the manned lunar landing from Earth-launch to the return, using the Saturn 5 launch vehicle and Apollo spacecraft.

These films will be in sound and color and will be open to the public.

16 Students Are Chosen As GE 'Bowl' Finalists

By JUDY FOSTER
Staff Reporter

The top 16 out of 100 students have been selected by the Marshall College Bowl Committee to compete in final eliminations for the G. E. College Bowl team, according to Dr. Harold E. Walker, vice-president of academic affairs.

wood sophomore; Ray Warren, Huntington senior; and Jane Woodward, Chesapeake, Ohio freshman.

These 16 students were chosen on the basis of a written examination which was prepared by the College Bowl Committee and was patterned after the questions on the television college bowl. Over 75 students participated.

Campus bowls, patterned after the television college bowls, will be held to determine which students will be sent to New York to compete on June 7.

At a special convocation open to all students next Tuesday, the 16 selected students will present two matches. The two matches will consist of 2 teams each and four contestants on each team. The top eight students will then hold one final bowl on Sunday, April 26, at 5 p.m. live on WSAZ-TV. Dr. Elaine Novak, associate professor of speech and team coach, will serve as moderator. At the end of the program, the four winners plus one alternate will be announced. Alertness, as well as knowledge will be a determining factor in the judging.

The College Bowl Committee has already received the check of the contestants and Dr. Novak, the team coach who will leave for New York on Saturday, June 6, and participate in the G. E. College Bowl, broadcast live at 5:30 p. m. June 7, on NBC.

Poll Turnout Average; 3 Amendments Ratified

By GARY KEARNS
News Editor

Dick Cottrill, Huntington junior, will never ever forget his 21st birthday!

That was when he became legal, but more importantly, that was when he emerged as the president of the student body in Wednesday's election. Cottrill polled a total of 820 votes.

He defeated Francis Fabi, Monaca, Pa., junior senator, who carried 612 votes.

Fred Reeder, Huntington junior, defeated Mike Carroll, Nitro junior senator, for the vice presidency. Reeder gathered 747 votes, and Carroll polled 687.

The turnout in Wednesday's election was average. All in all, 1,466 students went to the polls.

The three constitutional amendments received the approval of the student body, and they approved by a landslide.

John P. Cross, Pt. Pleasant junior, was elected to the presidency of the senior class. He received 93 votes.

The following junior students were elected as senior senators: Aaron Wagner, Albany, N.Y., 106; Loretta Ufheil, Huntington, 115; Donna Sturgeon, Ashton, 150; Dean Thompson, Huntington, 164; and Larry LeMasters, Follansbee, 175.

Joan Fleckenstein, Huntington sophomore, was elected to the presidency of the junior class. She polled 262 votes.

The new president of the sophomore class is Hobby Spaulding of Huntington, who totaled 196 votes.

And the following students were elected to sophomore senatorial seats:

David Frost, Huntington, 121; Sue Dilworth, Huntington, 145; Sam Samworth, Huntington, 253; Larry Bruce, Huntington, 209, and Nancy Glaser, Hawthorne, N. J., 290.

The results of the election were announced in the Student Union at the mix Wednesday night to a throng of screaming, cheering students. When Dick Cottrill, who was being carried about on the shoulders of some of his supporters, was asked if he had anything to say to The Parthenon, he just said: "I just want to thank everybody, that's all."

As elections go, this one had plenty of color, some old and some new.

A table was set up out on the lawn in front of the union where students could check their books while they were inside to vote.

It was election weather, too. The sky was cloudy and the air was nippy, but the smiles, hand shakes and the bear hugs were warm. But then everyone smiles on election day, especially the candidates.

Most of the candidates were stationed in front of the Student Union throughout the nine hours of voting. The polls opened at 8 a. m. and closed at 5 p. m. And you couldn't get into the union for a small vanilla Coke without being accosted by at least a dozen campus political aspirants.

But that's politics, and every candidate looked the part.

In fact, it almost got so bad that you almost had to wear a sign saying "I've Already Voted!" to even get inside the Student Union.

Student Body President Ken Gainer, Charleston senior, said about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday that the turnout was expected to be about the same as in recent years. At that time a total of 823 students had voted.

"This morning we had over 500 people who had voted in seeming no time, so we thought that this was the year that we would go over the 2,000 mark. But now I'm not so sure," he said.

However, one hour later, at 2:30 p. m. a total of 1,093 people had been to the polls and long lines had formed at each of the four voting machines.

It has been the precedent in past years for a good many of the Greek social organizations on campus to go to the polls en masse late in the afternoon on election day.

Gullickson Hall Dedication Set

Formal dedication of Gullickson Hall, formerly known as the Men's Health and Physical Education Building, will take place at a ceremony April 22.

The unveiling of a plaque honoring former professor of physical education, Otto "Swede" Gullickson, will take place at 3:30 p. m. in the main gymnasium.

According to Paul H. Collins, director of adult education who is in charge of the program, two graduates will speak at the dedication. They are Eugene H. Brown of Charleston, Class of 1936, and Miss Hazel Sumpter of Huntington, Class of 1935.

Mrs. Jane Shepherd, associate professor of music will sing.

Mr. Collins also noted that "Swede" would probably have a few responses to make to the speakers.

Professor Gullickson served as a teacher and director of intramurals at Marshall for 31 years. While here he developed one of the largest collegiate intramural programs in America.

SAGE SAYINGS

(Editor's Note: The views expressed in this column are the views of the authors and not necessarily those of The Parthenon).

A Greek caucus on our campus has been established rather unsuccessfully for a number of years. And, with the passing of another caucus, students may have witnessed the last of an assembly of this kind. The Greeks have just about realized that their caucus is unfair and certainly unnecessary under certain circumstances.

The purpose of the caucus initially was to choose a presidential and vice presidential candidate for the spring election who would automatically have the backing of the Greek organizations.

However, at the caucus meetings this year, representatives of Greek organizations realized the shortcomings of caucuses. Why choose between two qualified Greek candidates when they may not be opposed by an independent? Why not let each Greek candidate have an equal chance to achieve his position through popular vote rather than the "straw" vote of the caucus?

Some Greek organizations didn't even want to take part in the caucus, but felt that their organization should be represented.

Fabi's 10-5 caucus nod should have won him Greek support although the popular vote among the Greeks would have been about even as the five groups backing Cottrill possessed almost 50 per cent of the Greek membership.

And one of the larger sororities only favored Fabi by two votes in their active meeting. However, this gave Fabi the complete support of the group in the caucus.

This is one of the reasons Cottrill decided to run for the office of student body president. Isn't this more democratic than the Greek caucus candidate running unopposed?

As long as the Greeks are organized, the best leaders will come from the Greek ranks. The reason is because the independents aren't organized and do not exercise their opportunity to vote. However, this does not give the Greek caucus the right to pick a leader for all the students at Marshall University!

Thanks to some foresight on the part of the representatives of this year's caucus, the caucus in the future will be determined on a year-to-year basis. The action of caucus representation will be determined by the strength of the opposing independent candidate. If independents don't put up a candidate, there is no need for a Greek caucus to select one individual.

If a Greek caucus is called in the future, why not have a fairer way of determining the candidates — such as proportional representation?

At the time this column went to press, voting was still taking place and no decision had been made. The publication of this column did not take place until after the winner had been announced. Therefore, this column could not have influenced votes.

We now have a new student body president and vice president and it is the duty of Marshall students to give them full cooperation. Aren't you glad that you had the choice between two strong candidates rather than voting for a candidate chosen by the 15 voting delegates at the Greek caucus?

MARSHALL IN CONCERT

The Marshall University Symphonic Choir and the Brass Ensemble will participate in one of a series of concerts being presented by Portsmouth High School, Portsmouth, Ohio on April 14.

The two groups will be performing music from the Baroque period. Selection will be taken from "The Messiah" by Handel and some chorales by J. S. Bach.

The program will be closed by both groups performing Giovanni Gabrielli's "In Ecclesiis."

The symphonic choir will be under the direction of Richard K. Schall, assistant professor of music, and the brass ensemble will be conducted by Dr. Walbur Pursley, associate professor of music.

GRAD ANNOUNCEMENTS

Commencement announcements are now being sold in the Student Union office for 15 cents each, Don Morris, union manager, announced Wednesday. He explained that the limited number of announcements will be available on a first-come first-served basis.

Here Is The Parents' Weekend Commission

MEMBER OF the Parents' Weekend commission take time out from their duties to pose for a "family portrait." Student Governments Federation Will Meet Tomorrow On Campus

By PAT BLAIR
Feature Writer

The annual state convention of the West Virginia Federation of Collegiate Student Governments will be held on campus today and tomorrow.

The expected attendance at the convention will be 30 representatives from 19 various colleges throughout the state. The theme of the convention, according to Dick Cottrill, Huntington junior and coordinator of this year's conclave will be "Why Student Government".

The respective visiting members are scheduled to arrive on campus this afternoon. The first meeting will be a welcoming dinner at 5:30 p.m. in the basement of the cafeteria.

The featured speaker will be Dr. William Butler, dean of Students at Ohio University. Following the dinner the solons will visit the Campus Christian Center to view displays that the various student governments have brought with them. Also a square dance for only the visitors will be held from 8-10 p.m. in the Women's Gymnasium.

Tomorrow morning Dr. Butler will deliver a speech to the delegates. Following the talk there will be discussion groups and critiques to discuss and delve into new ideas to make student governments more efficient and helpful in university affairs. This meeting will be open to all interested persons who wish to attend.

In the afternoon the business session will be held for the purpose of choosing the new officers for the upcoming year. Perry Johnson, president of the federation, will preside over the election. The convention will be terminated with a banquet for the representatives.

According to Cottrill, "The convention was brought to our campus through the efforts of Janet Stewart, Charleston senior; Francis Fabi, Monaca, Pa., junior and Dean Shaw. They did a tremendous job of helping organize the agenda for the federation's meeting here."

Cottrill added, "I would like to see this meeting be a great success. During the past months many worthwhile ideas have originated in this federation. Two important ones were the civil service plan and the student discount buying plan, both of which are now being originated on our campus."

Any student or faculty member who wishes to attend any of the events or meetings, except the square dance, should contact Dick Cottrill or leave a note, both through the student government office.

Annual Science Fair Gets Underway Today

The annual Science Fair for high schools in this general area will be held today and tomorrow in Gullickson Hall to exhibit science projects that have been made by high school students.

The contest will be divided in two parts: junior and senior. The junior division will include grades 7-9 and the senior will have grades 10-12.

Rules for the science exhibits are that each exhibit is restricted to a limited space of 48 inches in width and length and 30 inches deep; all projects must remain unidentified as to the owner and the school they represent; owners of the exhibits will not be permitted to be present while the judging is taking place; and each exhibit must include the origin of its idea, source of all materials used, the method and details of construction, and the principle(s) that the exhibit illustrates.

There will be approximately 290 exhibits and students on hand for the two-day event.

"One thing I would like to emphasize," said Mr. John H. Hoback, Director of the Science Fair and associate professor of chemistry, "is that there will be no group projects exhibited. Each exhibit will represent one person's work."

The two outstanding winners (one boy and one girl) will receive a trip with their teacher to the national contest that will be held May 6-9, in Baltimore, Md.

Mr. Hoback said, "I really hope that the student body will participate in the Science Fair. We must remember that these students represent the schools that most heavily populate the Marshall student body."

Speech Students Slate 'Fun Night'

The Speech Department will hold its first annual Awards and Fun night at 6:30 p.m., Friday, April 17, in the Dining Hall.

The theme of the semi-formal dinner will be "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad Speech Night". Several Marshall students will entertain with lampoons, songs and interpretative dances. The speech faculty will be ribbed and impersonated in skits. There will be trophies presented to students for outstanding service in the area of radio and television, speech correction, drama, and debate.

Deadline for reservations will be 3 p.m. next Wednesday. Dr. Eugene Q. Hoak, chairman of the Speech Department, stated, "We expect this dinner to be the beginning of a great tradition for the Speech Department here at Marshall. It is hoped that all of the 200 speech majors and minors will plan to attend. All faculty members and students are invited to join for awards, fun, and good food."

Tickets to the dinner cost $1.25 per person and are on sale in the Speech Department, or from the following members of the planning committee: Alan Ross, Beckley senior; JoAnn Odum, Huntington junior; Jerry Ashworth, Huntington graduate student; Gary Sims, Huntington freshman; Karren Dille, Chesapeake, Ohio, sophomore, and Karl Keener, Huntington junior.

Professors Help Found Honorary

Four Marshall professors traveled to West Virginia Institute of Technology at Montgomery last Monday night to assist the Department of History at Tech in initiating a chapter of Phi Alpha Theta the honorary fraternity.

The professors were: Dr. Charles H. Moffat, professor of history; Dr. Herschel Heath, professor of history; Dr. Edwin A. Cully, associate professor of social studies; Walter C. Felty, associate professor of social studies and director of audio-visual aids.

Eleven charter members were initiated into the chapter, the 4th such chapter in W. Va. The first three chapters are: Marshall, West Virginia University, and West Virginia State College.

Marshall has had a chapter since 1950.

President Leonard Nelson of Tech addressed the chapter briefly and a social hour followed.

METHODIST CONFERENCE

The West Virginia Methodist Student Movement will have its Spring Conference April 10-12 at Jackson's Mill. The theme of the conference will be "The Relevance of The Church to The World Through My Vocation." There will be 11 Marshall students attending the conference, according to Rev. Lander Beal, campus pastor.

This helicopter is one of the planes used in the pick up and recovery procedures of the orbital flights made by the astronauts.

Gainer's Administration To Bow Out

By GARY KEARNS
News Editor

The campus government will change hands this evening as a new Student Government administration is inaugurated and the present one steps aside.

A special session of the Student Senate is likely to be called for 6 p.m. today in the Student Government Office for the purpose of swearing in the winners of Wednesday's election.

The newly-elected campus government officials will conduct the first senate session of their tenure next Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Government Office.

This week's senate session, of which the highlight was the ratification of the winners in Wednesday's election, was the last of the present administration.

And today, the regime of Ken Gainer, Charleston senior and student body president, and Marna Paulovicks, Wheeling senior and vice president of the student body, is drawing to a close, a finis.

"This year has been a tremendous experience," Gainer said. "There has been some good and some bad. I just hope that the good outweighs the bad. I want to thank everyone for their cooperation."

When asked what pieces of legislation that were acted upon by his administration did he consider most important, he listed the lengthening of the stay-out hours in the campus women's dormitories and in the Greek social sorority houses—plus the acquisition of the newly-designed class rings.

Gainer added that he has enjoyed the challenges that he has had to face during his term in office, and that these challenges have been many. "They seemed to come one right after the other," he said.

What decision or problem did he sweat over the most? That was an easy one. It concerned Resolution 107, the resolution presented by Frank Varacalli, Logan senior, in the Student Senate.

This piece of legislation suggested that Marshall students avoid those places of business which refused to serve and deal with all races. And this resolution passed the senate.

But President Gainer vetoed it in a meeting of the Student Cabinet, and it was the decision leading up to this veto which proved to be the most difficult task of his one year in office.

Resolution 107 was immediately presented again in the Student Senate after Gainer's veto was announced, but it failed.

Miss Paulovicks says that she has met many challenging and interesting people during the past year whom she will always remember, and in a Parthenon interview last December she stated that her work in the Student Government will remain foremost in her college memories.

She said that she was happy especially with the work of the senate this year and cited, as did Gainer, its accomplishments concerning the lengthening of the dorm hours.

Vice President Paulovicks also talked glowingly of the Civil Service System in mentioning other accomplishments of this year's Student Senate.

The annual Student Government banquet was held last Friday evening in the University Dining Hall, and each of the campus solons was presented with a certificate for his services during the last 12 months.

President Stewart H. Smith attended this dinner, which had an atmosphere of both happiness and sadness. The reasons for the gaiety are obvious—but the sadness? It was one of the last few times that this group of people would get together in this same way again.

They've been through a lot with one another, both ups and downs, anger and laughter. It was an eventful year.

The first senate meeting of the Gainer-Paulovicks administration largely concerned the approval of the Homecoming date for last year and the ratification of some of the first appointments of President Gainer.

For instance, all Wednesday night pay mixes in the Student Union were ruled taboo by the senate, with the exception of the pay mixes on Saturday nights after ball games.

And the senate also outlawed in this same session any roping off of sections of Fairfield Stadium and Memorial Field House at football and basketball games to exclusive "cheering squads." This was a controversial issue.

Singer Bo Diddley's absence from the Homecoming dance in the Field House caused the campus to hum.

A large number of students were sore because they felt they were cheated out of an evening's entertainment and the Student Government was busy for several days defending its integrity.

In a statement to The Parthenon, Gainer said, "A great deal of time went into this Homecoming, and it is indeed unfortunate that some students are gullible enough to believe all rumors that are spread by a few uninformed persons."

And then, more recently, quite a hassle flared up between two of the student government's branches, the Legislative and the Judicial.

The Student Court reported to the senate that it had ruled the proportional-representational voters' registration system unconstitutional.

Paul Weatherall, Huntington senior and chief justice of the court, made the decision of the justices known to the members of the campus legislative body.

Several members of the senate voiced their disapproval of the court's decision, questioning the theory that the Student Court possessed the power to declare a portion of the Student Government Constitution unconstitutional. President Smith overruled the court.

But these issues and legislation are only a taste of all that transpired on the floor of the senate this year, in meetings of the Student Cabinet and of the Student Court and of all the numerous committees and commissions which go into the makeup of the bureaucracy of a democratic government.

And don't forget Resolution 107 and the Civil Service System.

At the student government banquet last week, President

Smith, in an informal, relaxed after-dinner talk, heaped a hearty well-done on Kenny Gainer.

"I have known and worked with 18 student body presidents here at Marshall," Dr. Smith said, "and I will always rank Ken in my mind as one of the best."

Track Coach Charlie Kautz points out that the track situation is looking better on the MU campus, but that it certainly would be a lot better if there was more student participation.

This participation could come from both athletes and spectators, but the main factor at present is the lack of quantity compared to the quality the coach has to work with.

"We need more participants — good students, so that we can hang onto them throughout their college careers," Kautz commented. "We've had some pretty good boys in the past, but they seem to be flunking out of school or we lose some through graduation. A guy with a lot of enthusiasm the year round could do a lot for us."

While on the subject of his track squad, Coach Kautz went on to explain the difficulties in the program at Marshall.

"We just don't have enough scholarships," he said, adding that "other schools are in about the same boat as we are." These other schools still have more students turn out, however.

What is the reason or reasons that MU cannot muster enough forces to be well represented in the Mid-American Conference compared to its sister schools?

"I don't know. Really I don't," Coach Kautz said. "Actually we have so many things that could be factors in this problem."

Early in the practice sessions the coach remarked that "surly there are more qualified athletes in the school than we have out now."

This could be true. If so, where are all prospective candidates for the track team. The frosh team this season is probably the best in recent years or possibly the best ever. But as far as varsity runners go, the prospect isn't very bright.

For the past two years, it has been noted, the track team has been in the process of rebuilding. Due to graduation, drop-outs, and athletes flunking out the situation seems to be remaining the same. With the number of frosh prospects for the future this could be the best rebuilding year for the thinclads, but, once again, as in other sports, we'll just have to wait and see.

Another problem which the coach brought to light is that MU doesn't have a full-time track coach.

"This boils down to the main problem," Kautz said, "and this can be seen by taking a look at other schools and the programs they have because they have a full-time track coach."

"Other schools have their track programs divided into three parts," he said. "They have a cross-country, an indoor season, and then they go into the outdoor schedule."

By the time the Big Green thinclads get into operation the other schools have around five meets under their belts. Right off the bat we're at a disadvantage.

Another thing that the coach discussed was the facilities for the track sport at Marshall.

"We don't have the proper facilities here," he said, while adding, "we could use some more indoor facilities as well as developing what we have in the way of outdoor equipment."

"We're handicapped here because we have to build up our finances through football and basketball," Kautz commented, "and then we hope for the facilities we can get."

This year Coach Kautz does not plan on running his home meets on campus, such as has been done in the past two seasons. He feels that it is too hard to get the practice track into satisfactory condition for the meets and therefore the meets will be run at Fairfield Stadium. Two meets that will be coming up at the stadium are: Toledo on April 18 at 10:30 a. m. and against West Virginia Wesleyan on April 23 at 3:30 p. m.

"We feel that we aroused the student support with these on-campus meets, but it is just too hard to get the track in good condition and the one at Fairfield is more to the expected standards."

Tomorrow the thinclads head for Athens, Ohio, to take part in the Ohio University Relays. This will be the third meet the Big Green squad has entered this season.

"This is another meet where a lot of the great ones in the country will be competing," Kautz said. "We've got a few good boys, but we've got to run 'em to death. Twelve boys are trying to do it all and when you have 15 events, it's rough."

In the meet tomorrow, Coach Kautz looks to Miami University of Ohio to be strong.

"Western Michigan should be tough and OU looks to be strong," he said. "We'll have to wait and see what Miami does before we can see what competition we will get out of the conference."

Summarizing the track situation the MU mentor said that "We've made a lot of progress and a lot of strides, but looking at the overall picture, it'll take a little time."

"We could get more participation with more scholarships," he added, "and I put a lot of emphasis on the full-time coach situation."

Big Green Nine Stands Unbeaten After Three Victories This Week

Today and tomorrow the MU Baseball Team will be in Oxford, Ohio to play single games each day with Miami University.

Marshall's record stands at three wins and no losses. The Big Green's victories are over Morris Harvey, two games, and against West Virginia State College.

The double-header against Morris Harvey was played Monday at St. Cloud's Commons under clear skies, after an hour-and-a-half delay because of threatening rain. MU's John Mullins started the opener and was the winner by a score of 9-2.

Charles Newton was the starter in the night cap and he won by the score of 7-1.

On Tuesday, W. Va. State invaded and was beaten by the score of 4-3; Bob Lambert was the winning pitcher, although he did need help from Larry Tinchler in the sixth inning.

"About the three victories this week," commented baseball coach Alvis Brown, "we had real good pitching and our team defense was real good."

"Newton and Mullins pitched really good ball, and for that matter, Lambert did a good job."

"I thought Mike Cunningham looked good at the plate. He had a double in the second game Monday with the bases loaded and drove in three runs; and in Tuesday's game he won the game with a single with four aboard."

"Charlie Brown had a home run in the State game, which at the time tied the score; he really belted that ball."

"About the games with Miami today and tomorrow, all I can say is, I'm going to start Mullins today, and either Newton or Tinchler tomorrow."

"I think they can do the job, at least I hope so."

'Indoor Sessions Important' - Snyder

Spring practice for the Big Green football squad is not a completely outside affair. According to Coach Snyder of the Big Green, spring practice means a great deal of classroom work in "skull sessions".

Classroom work for the squad involves two phases. According to Snyder, "There are two kinds of classroom activity for the team. In one situation, the team is divided into the various positions they are filling on the team."

Tight Race Set For Golf Team

A four-team race is shaping up in the Mid-American Conference golf program.

"Marshall, Bowling Green, Toledo, Ohio University—any are capable of winning," says Buddy Graham, MU golf coach. "It all depends on who gets hot at the conference match."

The golf team absorbed its first loss last week to Ohio State University in a triangular meet. Marshall defeated Bowling Green University while losing to OSU. "We should have beaten Ohio State, and this year was our best chance to beat them," Graham said. The Big Green has already scheduled OSU again for next year.

Overall the team's record stands at 5-1. The linksmen are undefeated in conference play. The team's next match is tomorrow against Xavier University.

Sophomores Larry May and Joe Feaganes "are playing well," says Graham. "Feaganes has been doing a real good job and May has come through for us in a couple of matches," he commented.

Harry Hoffer and Feaganes have the best point average for the linksmen. Graham had been worried about Chip Woodring, but "he got his putting back last week and nothing should hold him back."

Graham's only remaining problem has been Dave Whipkey who has gotten off to a bad start.

"Whipkey's playing below what he should be" the golf mentor noted. "He's lost more matches this year than he has in the last two years."

The match that was postponed last week with the University of Cincinnati has been rescheduled for May 16.

ART HONORARY

The Kappa Pi art honorary will have an exhibition April 29 and 30 in the Student Union. All members are urged to submit their work by Saturday, April 25.

Snyder said that Coach Spike Underwood handles the offensive interior line while Coach Olen Jones briefs the defensive linemen. The offensive backs are under the direction of Coach Alvis Brown; defensive backs are assigned to Coach Ed Prelaz, and Coach Charlie Kautz instructs the ends.

If a practice were called for a particular day, the squad would meet at 12:30 and be briefed by the coaching specialists. Snyder emphasized the fact that there is classroom work only when there is to be an outside practice. Otherwise, a classroom session could be declared a full practice day.

"In these sessions," Snyder explained, "the coaches and the boys discuss technique, plays, defenses, and other problems involving their particular group. But even before this session, I have a meeting with all the coaches and brief them on their respective part of the team."

The second phase of classroom work comes just before the team goes outside for practice on the field. There, in the squad room, Coach Snyder discusses general topics of interest to the team.

Snyder said that as far as he is concerned, spring practice, with respect to classroom work, is of great importance to the new members of the varsity squad.

"As freshmen," Snyder commented, "the boys on the team learn our basic play pattern. But as freshmen, they play a great deal as a scout unit, or a unit which practices with the varsity and runs the oppositions' plays. So the freshmen who are to play varsity ball are not nearly orientated enough in our play patterns. I would say that the freshmen learn the biggest part of their football knowledge in the spring practice between their freshman and sophomore years."

"The only thing they have to do then," Snyder said, "is get experience."

QUESTION: What one function or activity would interest you enough to remain on campus during weekends?

Karen Martin, Poca freshman:

"I think better facilities, recreation other than the Student Union, and a means of transportation to these facilities should be provided."

Ernie Devol, Parkersburg junior:

"Actually none. I have a part-time job in Parkersburg, so I have to go home on weekends."

Bernieda Napier, Lenore freshman:

"Nothing would really hold my interest because my boyfriend and friends are at home."

Phil Hoffman, New Haven sophomore:

"If my girl friend were here, I wouldn't go home so often. There should be other entertainment besides the Student Union and downtown movies."

Winners Are Selected In Voting By Students

A good bit of consternation developed on campus on Tuesday evening, the night before the election, on whether or not the election would even go off Wednesday.

Richard Forth, Hurricane freshman, who was a candidate for a sophomore senatorial seat, brought charges before the Student Court, which were in the form of an injunction, contesting the eligibility of several of the candidates.

Forth, who was represented by Virgil W. Jones, Huntington senior, asked for the postponement of the election. The court, which met in a late night session on Tuesday, rejected this request for an injunction.

A second injunction was then presented which asked for the delaying of the sophomore class election. The court also vetoed this.

And the election went off as

May 2, 9, 16 Set For Registration

Advanced registration for summer terms will be held May 2, 9, and 16, according to James F. Moore, assistant registrar.

Registration will be from 8:30-11:30 p.m. on the second floor of Old Main. The first term is from June 8-July 10, the second is from July 13-August 15.

Moore said students may now register for both summer terms at once instead of having to register separately as before.

However regular registration for the separate terms will be held June 8 and July 13.

Moore said students registering for both terms need to pay fees for one term only when registering. Second term fees will be payable the first week in July.

Moore said advanced registration for the fall term will be held in Gullickson Hall May 22 from 8-3:30 p.m., and on May 23 from 8:30-11:30 p.m.

Payment of fees is not required for the fall advanced registration, Moore said.

planned, and without any hitches.

Robert Putoff, Huntington senior, the head of the Men's Residence Hall, was approached last week by Forth, who was seeking advice on what he should do about the matter.

Putoff referred him to the Student Court, which issued a writ of mandamus to the Election Commission. But being unsatisfied with the hearing with the commission, Forth returned with his two requests for injunctions to the Student Court.

Putoff added that Forth has one more appeal coming concerning this matter, and that the election results just might be contested in connection with the Election Commission's handling of certain candidates entering the race.

This week was election week, but it was also the week the rains came. The precipitation started Sunday evening, right after most of the campaign signs went up, and it continued intermittently all through the week.

Few signs survived.

The paint on most of them were so streaked they looked more like products of abstract art than they did election posters. And since most of the signs were made of cardboard, they were bending and limp by Wednesday.

The signs this year were as clever and as cute as they have been in the past.

Activities Set At Christian Center

There will be a Folk Sing at the Campus Christian Center at 7:30 p. m. today.

On Sunday, there will be the regular worship service at 11 a. m., however, in place of the sermon, there will be an interpretive dance entitled "The Story of Job" by Sonra King, Huntington junior. Others taking part in the dance include three Marshall students. The students are: Gary Templeton, Milton sophomore; Tim Hayes, Huntington junior; and Jim Brown, Triadelphia junior. Others taking part in the dance are: Margaret Bentley, Phillip Mallory, Shawn Doyle, Becky Stadler, Billie Irene Rowe, and Trudy Bailes. add overset 6

On Monday there will be a film entitled "A Study in Color." This film deals with racial discrimination and it will be shown to the Methodist Student Movement at 3 p. m.

On Thursday there will be a film entitled "The Miracle of Love," and it will be shown to the Baptist Student Movement at noon. At 7 p. m. there will another film shown, it is entitled "Philosophy of Life" and is by Paul Tillich, a prominent contemporary theologian. At 8:15 p. m., there will be poetry reading by Victor Depta.

Payments Are Due For TWL Project

Participants in the TWL Project must pay the final balance of $275 for their trip to Germany on or before April 25, Dr. Walter Perl, program director, announced.

Payment should be made at Travel Inc., 407 Ninth St. All checks must be made payable to TWL Project. Persons wishing to charge the trip should see Travel Inc. on or before April 5 for the necessary forms and arrangements.

Orientation classes are being conducted by Dr. Perl on Wednesdays, 7:30-9 p.m., in the Science Hall, Room 109 or the Auditorium.
